

CONTENTS

|                                                                                                                                                                                                       |                                                                   |     |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Between “Natural Selection” and “the Realm of Freedom”: Praxis, the Materialist Conception of History and the Situation of Modern People (Part 2)                                                     | Zhang Shuguang                                             | 1   |
| The Interpretive Principles of Civil Society: From Hegel to Marx                                                                                                                                      | Ma Wandong                                                 | 12  |
| A Critique of the Dialectical Premise of the State Organism: Marx’s Way of Reversing Hegel’s “State”                                                                                                  | Chen Shicong                                               | 20  |
| Karl Marx at the Court of Mr. Yu. Zhukovsky                                                                                                                                                           | Николай Константинович Михайловский Trans. by Zhou Laishun | 29  |
| The Images of Mao Tse-tung Cultivated by Traditional Chinese Culture:Based on the Perspectives of Foreign Scholars                                                                                | Ouyang Qi He Zhengkai                                      | 49  |
| Mao Tse-tung in the Genealogy of Moral Politics                                                                                                                                                       | Meng Yong                                                  | 57  |
| The Evolution of Mao Tse-tung’s Perceptions towards the Nature of Bureaucratism afterthe Founding of People’s Republic of China                                                                   | Du Jiacheng                                                | 65  |
| Truth Conveying vs Truth Speaking                                                                                                                                                                     | Zhai Zhenming                                              | 73  |
| Hannah Arendt’s Conception of Conscience: Conscience and I-Myself Relation                                                                                                                            | Liu Jiantao                                                | 78  |
| On the Difficulties in Socrates’ Defense                                                                                                                                                              | Huang Qixiang                                              | 87  |
| Spinoza’s Collectivism                                                                                                                                                                                | Zhang Yan                                                  | 96  |
| The Foundational Logic of Ernst Cassirer’s Philosophy and Its Implications for Metaphysics                                                                                                            | Gao Shenchun Yu Bochong                                    | 104 |
| A Study on the Commonality between Leibniz’s Monadology and His Thoughts in Mathematics                                                                                                               | Yang Xingsheng                                             | 112 |
| The Innovations of Confucius’ Thought on the Ancestral God                                                                                                                                            | Chen Tongsheng                                             | 117 |
| A New Exploration of the Name of Hexagram Kun in Zhouyi : The Inspiration of Bamboo Strips of theGui Cang in Qin Dynasty and the Shifa Chapter on the Tsinghua Bamboo Strips | Xin Yamin                                                  | 125 |
| On the Similarities and Differences between Confucianism and the Dominant School at Jixia Academy in theConception of “Ritual Comportment” (li rong)                                              | Zhang Tao                                                  | 131 |
| In-person Witnessing and Mind Reasoning: Principles of Loyalty and Consideration in Zhuangzi                                                                                                   | Huang Yanqiang                                             | 140 |
| “The Morality of Confucius” Highlighted in Zheng Xuan’s Annotations on Zhong Yong( Doctrine of the Mean )                                                                           | Li Qihui                                                   | 147 |
| On Meditation of the Thought that “Everything is Equal”: Meditating Being without Restraint and theDirection of the Thought of “Making the World a Wonderful Existent Realm”                      | Yang Hu                                                    | 153 |